Pastor Letter

Tell me something good, Pastor Ivy! Ok. Here it is, the good news is rooted in justice, mercy, and faithfulness. This week's story, found in John 8:2-11, reveals many truths about human behavior. Paramount, for me, is the raw courage that forms in us from being part of a group. Participating in a group or gang can bring about an adrenaline reaction that forces the worst or best in us to come out. Within this particular group, the worst is revealed. This story involves a gang of men searching for and finding two people caught in adultery. Both were caught, but they captured and dragged only the woman through the city streets, right to where Jesus was. This crowd wanted to kill her by stoning, but only with Jesus' command to do so.

Friends, we will do things as a group that we will never do all alone. This crowd, this gang, this group decided that they would be judge and jury over the very law that they quoted to Jesus. The Jewish law, the law of Moses they called it, in Deuteronomy 22:22-24 states that both parties should be stoned to death. Yet, to fit their purpose, to match the venom they had about Jesus, they twisted the law to fit their cause, in order to trap Jesus. Her sin was not on trial; Jesus' wisdom was.

Well, what's the harm? She was guilty, so why not expose her? The only lesson we can take from this group's action is what they did, not what they said or desired to do. The best thing this group did was to take her to Jesus. Yep, throwing her at Jesus' feet was the exact need for her desire. Jesus shamed all of her accusers and then redeemed her lovingly. He forgave her, and she was restored. It should be no surprise to us that Jesus was crucified, huh?

Yet I shudder when I hear: 'We don't stone people anymore, Pastor Ivy.' Hmmm, with actual rocks/stones, that's all together true. However, the accumulated blows, the repetitive attacks, the continuous onslaughts still happen. We all shudder as folk, children particularly, are pummeled over and over through in-school bullying, online chat attacks, psychological abuse, and social media shame.

Naturally, everyone wants to be the hero of their own story, telling history from their advantage. Yet the harm is done when others will repeat this kind of practice and erase the law(s) and their intent....both were to be stoned, the man and the woman. We will do things as a group that we would never do alone. Bring others to Jesus to impart justice and mercy through faithfulness.

– Pastor Ivy

*Yes, that's me and my late husband, David, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Rev. Jackson came to United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio, to preach while I was a student. He had two requests. One was to address the population of the Dayton Correctional Institution (DCI), and the second was to have the black seminary students go and stand with him. He was such an inspiring presence. Rest in Peace, Dear Brother!
